Keith,

Thanks for the conversation today regarding the production of a hosted documentary special, exploring the hot rods and muscle cars of Detroit. As we discussed, it's a topic that has nearly universal appeal for Detroit's various and diverse populations.

Detroit PBS is committed to covering issues in the public interest, including those recognizing the ways in which the automotive industry has impacted the lives of metro Detroiters over the last century

And finally, for fans of history, this program is a unique way of telling the Detroit story through its people and their passion for their automobiles. We are so pleased to include it in our broadcast plans and look forward to a premiere in 2022.
